

Sensory Solutions Kindergarten Readiness Summer 2018

Some kids just aren't quite ready for the demands of school. Due to developmental, emotional and social challenges, this transition can be rigorous for some children and their parents. This group will target the skills necessary to find success at school, whether your child is entering transitional kindergarten (TK) or kindergarten.

This group seeks to:

- Increase the child's understanding of classroom and playground routines, rules, and expectations
- Provide specific sensory motor strategies to facilitate the child's regulation status to support attention, impulse control, and to address sensory seeking and avoiding behaviors
- Increase social and emotional awareness and introduce social rules and strategies
- Provide opportunities to build and improve on foundational fine and gross motor skills
- Provide parents with sensory, motor and social/cognitive strategies to support their child through this transition
